NEW MAYOR'S LID ON TIGHT.

Merchant Arrested In His Office While Reading Mail.

EXTREME SUNDAY LAW.

Police Force Ordered To Enforce Laws or Quit The Force.

Nashville, Nov. 11.—The Sunday-closing laws were enforced in Nashville by order of Mayor Brown, who threatened the police force with dismissal if it failed to comply. Twenty-five arrests were made, including a wholesale merchant, who was found in his office reading mail. Bootblacks were put out of business. Only soda fountains and cigar stands were allowed to remain open.

SOCIAL SESSION.

Of the Elks Will be Held To-night at Lodge Room.

There will be a social session of the Elks lodge at the club rooms to-night, at which there will be some good eating, some good music, some good speaking and a good time generally. Every Elk in the city who does not attend will make a mistake. Col. Jonett Henry will officiate as master of ceremonies, and the committee on arrangements, Dr. Fairstein, R. M. Fairleigh and Dennis Shaw, announce the following program: Starting Things..... Col. Henry Song..... Guy Starling How it Happened..... Jno. C. Duffy The Story of Uriah..... T. C. Underwood Legerdemain and Necromancy..... "The Professor" Incongruous and Desultory Observations..... Mayor Mescham Original Poem..... William P. Winfree, Jr. The Dog as an Index to His Master's Character..... J. T. Hanbery Advanced Vaudeville..... C. R. Clark and Guy Starling A collation will be served.

McD. O'Brien.

McD. O'Brien, ex-superintendent of the county school of Todd county, died last week at the home of his son, near Guthrie, of heart failure. Mr. O'Brien was well-known in Todd and adjoining counties, and had a host of friends who will hear of his death with profound regret.—Review.

HIGH PRICES PAID

American Tobacco Company Is Buying Indiana Crop

Boonville, Ind., Nov. 9.—In the face of the financial crisis the American Tobacco company is offering the highest prices for tobacco here in this section that have been paid since the civil war. Many farmers have pooled their crops and some have been offered eight and a quarter cents per pound, and have refused to take it. Those who have pooled are holding out for ten cents for their best grades. However, hundreds of growers, who do not understand the money situation and who want their tobacco turned into cash, are taking from six to eight cents, and are signing contracts with the trust.

Weddings at Carl.

Deputy County Clerk Wicks issued license yesterday for the marriage of Mr. Richard Boyd and Miss Thera Henderson and Mr. Jerome K. Long and Miss Nannie E. Henderson. It will not be a double wedding, and though the brides bear the same name they are in no way related. The weddings will take place at Carl to-night and Rev. T. T. Powell will officiate.

OWENSBORO MARKET CLOSED

No Tobacco Is To Be Received Before December Sixteenth.

TROUBLE MAY BE OVER

The Buyers Requested The Farmers Not to Make Their Deliveries.

Owensboro, Nov. 11.—The tobacco buyers of Owensboro have signed a request to growers not to deliver tobacco in Owensboro before December 16. It is stated in the request that currency to make settlement cannot be obtained before that date. It is thought that this move will put an end to the trouble that has been brewing and give the faction a chance to set together.

NEAR A BATTLE.

Rival Factions Gather at Owensboro.

Owensboro, Ky., Nov. 9.—Owensboro this afternoon was in the hands of thousands of tobacco growers from several counties, representing three distinct factions, and for several hours it was feared that a battle to the death would be fought. The mayor ordered out the full police force and directed it to assist the sheriff and his deputies in preserving order. He also stopped the sale of fire arms and ammunition when he found that one store had sold six shot guns. Each of the factions held a meeting, and the independent growers perfected an organization to protect their homes against the association men, who have pooled their crops and who are trying to "persuade" all other growers to enter the combine. The result of the three meetings is that the tobacco war has broken out fiercer than ever, and it is felt certain that trouble will follow.

SEVEN ADDITIONS.

To Casky Church and the Revival Still Goes On.

The revival at the Casky Baptist church will continue throughout this week with services twice a day, at two and seven p. m. Rev. M. H. Kuykendall, the Tennessee evangelist, is doing the preaching, assisted by Pastor W. H. Vaughn. There have been seven additions to the church and there is no abatement in the interest.

SEEK TO ROB A BANK

Outlaws Forced Inhabitants to Keep Off Street While They Stole $6500.

Canova, S. D., Nov. 8.—Several armed bandits early yesterday blew the safe in the Interstate Bank and secured $7,500. They made their escape. While two bandits were at the bank the others guarded the streets. The occupants of a hotel was aroused by the explosion, but the robbers opened fire and drove them back, threatening to kill the first man who appeared. The hotel was riddled with bullets. Where lights were burning in homes, the bandits at the point of guns forced the owners to extinguish them.

BY 8 TO 0

H. H. S. Walloped The Overgrown Mountaineers.

The Hopkinsville High School boys went to Cumberland City, Tenn., Saturday and played a school team made up largely of grown men. They had run the score up to 8 to 0 when the decisions of the local referees became so raw the H.H.S. boys walked off the field when they were refused another touchdown. The game lacked about four minutes of being over.

To go to a place to attempt to play foot ball in mud and water is bad enough but to get a lemon handed up by the referee in such a game is surely the limit. This is exactly what the High school boys met with at Cumberland City. Of course it will be expected that those who read the account of a foot ball game in which the referee appears as exaggerated statements but even with this, it is bad. Although the C. C. A. team weighed about 160 lbs. the High School played rings around them. With a referee who understood the game, High school would have rolled up a good sized score. Handicapped as they were, they were able to score eight points. Finally the decisions became so rank that the H. S. lads refused to accept them. They walked from the field, forfeiting the game. C. C. A. gained little honor from that game. They thought it would be easy for them but they were out-classed in every point of the game. It is usually best to accept the decisions of a referee without question. However there are times when this ceases to be a virtue. The home boys did perfectly right. They had proven themselves superior to their opponents and it was useless to continue the game. No word of condemnation of their action is justifiable.

DELEGATES APPOINTED

To The State Development Convention Next Week.

The sixth annual state development convention, which will be held in Louisville on the 19th, 20th and 21st of this month, will probably surpass in interest any event of the sort ever held in Kentucky. Mayor Mescham has appointed the following delegates from this city: C. F. Jarrett, James West, R. E. Cooper, L. H. Davis, T. C. Underwood, F. W. Fowler, Dr. J. B. Jackson, F. W. Dabney, T. J. Tate, Jno. H. Bell, E. W. Clark, John Feland, Frank Rives, W. A. Wilgus, J. J. Henry, Geo. E. Gary and T. L. Metcalfe.

WILLSON GAINED A FEW VOTES.

Official Canvass Made and Sad Details Disclosed.

ERROR IN BAKER'S MILL

Judge Breathitt Ran 21 Votes Ahead of His Ticket.

The official canvass of the election returns from Christian county was completed Saturday by the commission composed of Sheriff David Smith, Jno. B. Culliton and J. M. Starling. W. J. Chiles was made clerk to the board. Only one change was made in the unofficial returns that affected the totals. It was found that the Republican vote in Baker's Mill was 53 instead of 40, a gain of 13 votes and once more the fatal 13 cut a figure in the results. The totals varied so slightly in the various races that one column will answer for them all, in the table below. The following totals tell the tale of woe:

For governor, S. W. Hager Dem. 2,605, A. E. Willson Rep. 3,926, Willson's majority 1,321.

For lieutenant governor, South Trimble Dem. 2,558, William H. Cox Rep. 3,886, Cox's majority 1,328.

For attorney general, John K. Hendrick Dem. 2,557, James Breathitt Rep. 3,890, Breathitt's majority 1,342.

For auditor, H. M. Bosworth Dem. 2,559, Frank P. James Rep. 3,871, James' majority 1,312.

For treasurer, Ruby Laffoon Dem. 2,560, Edwin Farley, Rep. 3,886, Farley's majority 1,306.

For secretary of state, Hubert Vreeland Dem. 2,553, Ben L. Bruner Rep. 3,878, Bruner's majority 1,325.

For superintendent of public instruction, M. O. Winfree Dem. 2,559, J. G. Crabbe Rep. 3,870, Crabbe's majority 1,311.

For commissioner of agriculture, labor and statistics, J. W. Newman Dem. 2,543, Merrell C. Rankin Rep. 3,966, Rankin's majority 1,323.

For railroad commissioner, McD. Ferguson Dem. 2,562, C. L. Harney Socialist 79, Ferguson's majority 2,483.

For clerk of court of appeals, John B. Chesnut Dem. 2,561, Napier Adams Rep. 3,866, Adams' majority 1,305.

For representative, John Feland, Rep., no opposition, 3,877.

For constitutional amendment 1,234, against 3,192. Majority against 1,958.

Fair Monday and Tuesday

The fourth trial of Caleb Powers was called at Georgetown yesterday.

The Pythian Home near Lexington will be formally opened on Thanksgiving day.

Tinsley's majority over Brasher in Hopkins county was 214. Willson carried the county by 11, Cox by 19. Breathitt by 7, while Laffoon, Democrat, had 36 majority.

It is believed that the word has gone forth that there are to be no Republican "ratification meetings" held in Kentucky. No offense is to be given to Democrats who helped do it.

Representative W. J. Gooch, of Simpson, is a candidate for speaker of the House, but the fact that he is understood to be Gov. Beckham's choice for the place may or may not be a source of strength for him.

W. S. Taylor has written from Indianapolis to a friend at Paducah that he will soon return to Kentucky. Watch him, night riders, he may be headed towards the Black Patch to buy tobacco for the trust.

Stuyvesant Fish, former president of the Illinois Central railroad, said that he would send out a new request for proxies for the annual meeting of the Illinois Central stockholders, to be held in Chicago December 18.

The Fairview Magisterial district of Todd county has adopted a stock law by a large majority. The time is coming when this kind of a law should be adopted by the whole state. It is cheaper to confine live stock than to fence farms.

The editor of the Kentuckian doesn't like much to live under Republican rule, but we will have to try to worry along somehow. There are no Democratic places to move to except Oklahoma and Trigg county. Oklahoma is too far off, and our night riding neighbors have advised us to stay out of Trigg county. So what can't be cured must be endured.

The greatest need of the Democratic party in the late convention was a platform dealing with live issues. As it was, every candidate made his own platform and no two of them were alike. A profanation of the Christian Sabbath in Louisville was Tyler's platform, while a declaration in favor of prohibition by Beckham and Hager drove the whisky vote en masse into the Republican camp. In several counties open advocates of night riding ran on their own platforms, while a hundred speakers were turned loose unbridled to advocate everything from prohibition to barn-burning, with no platform of principles to save the party from its own friends. Next time let us go back to the old fashioned convention. May we

When Gov.-elect Willson is inaugurated on December 2 he will have numerous offices to fill at once. Among them are an adjutant general, at a salary of $2,000 a year; an assistant adjutant general at $1,300 a year; a state inspector and examiner at a salary of $3,000 a year, it being necessary for the latter appointment, however, to be confirmed by the senate. He will also have the appointment of a private secretary at a salary of $2,000 a year, and members of the state board of control.

Robt. J. Phillips' term is out Jan. 1, but Dr. Milton Board and Percy Haly can hold on until after the senate adjourns. The governor can remove for cause, subject to an appeal to the senate. The anti-Beckham men in the senate may back up the new governor, especially if he should carry out the pledge made in his speech to appoint a non-partisan board.

Mr. Watterson has been on the war path since the election and gives these reasons for the Democratic defeat:

"The queer proceeding with respect to the mountain feudists, the immunity enjoyed by the outlaws of the tobacco belt, the snap-primary with its stuffed returns, the shamless use of the public patronage in dovetailing the machine, were enough to arouse the distrust of fair-minded men. * * * Finally, as the crowning mistake of Stolidity masquerading as a statesman, these blind leaders of the blind, wholly misconceiving the force of a hysterical wave of prohibition, sought to mount this and ride it, cutting loose not only from Democratic tradition, but from the facts of the situation and the logic of argument. * * * Fancy a Democratic ticket preaching unimpaired laws in the state, and a Democratic ticket preaching no law at all in the city."

NOT HYDROPHOBIA.

Mr. Keith's Dog Was Suffering From "Black Tongue."

The bird dog which bit Mrs. John Mitchell and J. W. Allen on November 3 was kept confined by Mr. David Keith, its owner, until last Tuesday, when the animal died. It had no symptoms of hydrophobia, but was evidently suffering from a disease that dog fanciers call "black tongue." It always proves fatal but causes no injury to persons bitten. It makes the dog cross from its sufferings, its mouth is kept half open and saliva escapes; the dog can not eat but drinks a great deal of water. At times it gets quiet and then is attacked with renewed spells. Some of the symptoms are suggestive of hydrophobia, but the disease is entirely different and breeders of dogs who are familiar with it say that it need not be feared.

Both Mr. Allen and Mrs. Mitchell went to Chicago for treatment, as they were very much frightened.

AUGUSTUS E. WILLSON

A Few Facts About Kentucky's Governor-Elect.

Augustus E. Willson, Kentucky's Republican Governor-elect, was born in Maysville, October 13, 1846. He is a son of the late Hiram Willson and Ann Calvin Ennis. Both parents were of New England origin, the father having been born in Windsor, Vt., and the mother in Westerly, R. I. They settled in Maysville in the '30s. Mr. Willson received his early education at the Alfred Academy, in Western New York, and after a preparatory course entered Harvard University. He is a graduate of the Harvard Law School class of '69. Immediately after leaving college he came to Louisville, and entered the law office of Judge John M. Harlan, now Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. For many years he was Justice Harlan's law partner, and was associated with him in many prominent legal cases. Since Justice Harlan has been in Washington, Mr. Willson has practiced almost exclusively in the United States Court. Recently he formed a law partnership with Judge William G. Dearing and Arthur E. Hopkins. The firm occupies a suite of handsome offices on the seventh floor of the new Paul Jones building.

Mr. Willson has always been an earnest Republican, as he said in his campaign speeches, "I hollered for Fremont in '56." In many Kentucky and national political campaigns he has been prominent. He took the stump for Judge Harlan in the latter's race for Governorship, and years later in the Harrison, McKinley and Roosevelt political campaign. He was nominated and defeated three times for Congress in the Louisville district in the years 1884, 1888 and 1892, then hopelessly Democratic, and succeeded in cutting down the Democratic majority each time. In 1886 he was nominated for Congress and was elected by a majority of 67 votes, but was counted out by a change of ballots in one precinct in the tenth ward and at Fisherville, which gave his opponent a majority of 142.

In 1887 Mr. Willson married Miss Mary Ekin, daughter of Gen. James A. Ekin, of Louisville. Mr. and Mrs. Willson have no children, one, a boy, having died in his infancy.

Mr. Willson was a delegate to the National Convention of 1884, 1888, 1892 and 1904. He is the first Harvard Governor of Kentucky.—Louisville Herald.

Prizing Firm.

A representative of the Kentuckian visited the Rockbridge Stemmy yesterday and the popular prizing house is already getting busy with the association tobacco. Last year it was operated independently, but this year Messrs. Dorris & Fairleigh have a contract with the Planters association and are ready for the rush. They have perhaps the most commodious factory in the city. The basement is used for the stripping rooms. The prizing room is on the main floor and is equipped with ten screws and operated with steam. Also on this floor are the classing rooms and numerous rooms for bulking and storage. The drying rooms are in the third story. The factory has 25,000 feet of floor space for bulking and crops can be kept separate, no matter how many are sent in.

Messrs. Dorris & Fairleigh are experienced tobacco men and give their personal attention to the business. W. R. Dorris has charge of the factory, while R. M. Fairleigh is to be found in the office. They usually work from 50 to 75 hands and their workmen are first class men in their several departments who have been with them heretofore. Those who send tobacco to them may feel assured that their interests will be properly looked after.

The head of the Cudahy Packing Co. has predicted that hogs will decline to $4 per hundred soon, flour was reported by Louisville papers Saturday as having dropped 50 cents on the barrel and a general decline in necessities is predicted to soon occur. A decline in butter and poultry was already evident last week. Corn was off 6 cents; oats 4 cents, and rye 4 cents. Products from these cereals, such as flour, meal, rolled oats, etc., have not yet reflected the decline but will eventually.

Eugene Littlepage and Charlie Garrott, both colored, got into a difficulty Saturday night. It is alleged that the trouble was brought about by Littlepage's attention to Garrott's wife. Garrott took a shot at Littlepage, the shot taking effect in the left arm. The police were notified and went out to Cleveland Avenue, where they found Littlepage leaning up against a fence scared half to death. He had made up his mind that he was bound to die, but when the police assured him that the wound was very slight he was soon himself again. Garrott was arrested, but was released on bond.

Often The Kidneys Are

Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood. It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work. Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all the best druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You can have a sample bottle of Swamp-Root, by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Birmingham, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Birmingham, N. Y., on every bottle.

HEROIC ACT

Engineer Blown to Atoms in Saving a Town.

Douglas, Ariz., Nov. 11.—The death list as a result of the Nacazri explosion yesterday is now placed at fifteen Mexicans and John Chisholm, aged 13, who was riding on the train when the explosion occurred. A train on the narrow gauge railroad to the Pilares mines in some way caught fire. On the train were two open cars heavily loaded with explosives, and the fact that the concentrator and a good part of the town of Nacazri were saved from ruin was due to the bravery of the Mexican engineer, Jesus Garcia. Realizing that to cut out the burning cars and escape on the engine would expose the town to probable destruction, he called to the rest to jump and started to run the train away from the town. He had taken about half a mile when the explosion occurred and he was blown to atoms.

BARACA LAST MEETING

Of Present Council to be Held Friday Night.

The present city council will hold its last meeting next Friday night. On Monday, Dec. 2, before the date for the regular December meeting, the new council will be sworn in, but there will be only three changes in its membership from the present body. All city officers excepting mayor and city judge are to be elected in time to qualify the first Monday in January.

Lost His 'Possums.

Jesse Burrus not long ago went 'possum hunting and succeeded in catching two fine opossums. They were kept under a fattening process for several days and he had them nicely dressed and told the cook to hang them out to keep them nice and cool. They were hung out on the back porch, but when Mr. Burrus went out to look after them two hours later, no 'possums were in sight. Up to a late hour last night they had not been returned.

BARACA NEW RECORD

By Lusitania and She Also Brings $12,000,000 in Gold.

New York, Nov. 10.—A new record of four days, eighteen hours and forty minutes from Queenstown to Sandy Hook was made by the Lusitania which arrived today. The steamer brought over $12,000,000 in gold for financial relief.

Will Not Resume. The Kentucky Carbonate Co., whose bottling works were burned sometime since, have sold out to Ferd Schmitt and will not resume business.

QUAIL SHOOTING

Will be Permitted Next Saturday.

The law protecting quail, doves, woodchucks, pheasants, squirrels, and rabbits from February first to November 15th is "out" next Saturday.

Dealers in implements have their hunters already planning for many days in the fields and underbrush. It should not be forgotten, however, that it is a violation of the game law for successful hunters or anyone else to offer for sale or ship out of the state any of the game above spoken of, excepting rabbits.

BARACA

Who Will be Judge?

Many guesses have been made as to who will step into County Judge James Breathitt's shoes when he assumes the duties of attorney general. Governor-elect Willson will have to name a man for the place, as the national election will be held next year and Judge Breathitt's successor cannot be selected by the people.

The following gentlemen have been mentioned by their friends as probabilities:

Chas. O. Prowse, attorney; J. Mat. Starling, former circuit clerk; ex-Judge A. H. Anderson and Stanley Long, assistant revenue collector and attorney.

Of course "there are others," who at the proper time will be heard from. There is plenty of good timber in the Republican party, but it is a little early to begin guessing as to how the pie will be served. Already Mr. Willson is being besieged by office-seekers and why shouldn't members of the party here begin making a move in that direction?

Real Estate Transfer.

Mrs. Willie Weeks has bought the Jack Meador home on West 18th street; Dr. Tunks has bought one of the Hewlett cottages on West 15th street; W. D. Stowe has leased the cottage on South Campbell street now occupied by Mrs. Weeks; R. J. Carothers, of Lafayette, bought Mr. Stowe's property on South Main, some time since and "moving day" will be here for four families before long.

BARACA WORK BUGUN

On New Stable for Howard Brame.

Dirt was broken Saturday for the erection of a new stable for Mr. Howard Brame. The building will be 35 feet in width and will adjoin the Elgin building on Virginia street, between Seventh and Eighth. Mr. Brame does not contemplate abandoning the building he has been occupying on Seventh street opposite Hotel Latham, for some years. The new building is necessary on account of the increase in the popular liveryman's business.

ALL RE-ELECTED

Daughters of the Confederacy Choose Officials.

The Annual election of officers of the Christian County Chapter, U. D. C., was held Saturday afternoon. All of the old officers who were eligible were re-elected without opposition. Those chosen were:

President, Mrs. L. M. Blakemore.
First Vice President, Mrs. Jouett Henry.
Second Vice President, Mrs. Edna Perry.
Secretary, Mrs. Robt. W. White.
Treasurer, Mrs. P. E. West.
Chaplain, Mrs. J. B. McKenzie.
Vice-Chaplain, Mrs. W. E. Warfield.
Mrs. R. W. White, the secretary, was formerly Miss Mary Redd and was a bride of only four days. In commenting on her re-election the President said: "You have been Redd, you are now White and we all know that you are always true Blue."

The officers serve for one year.

Two In One

The President has issued an order consolidating the two internal revenue collection districts, with headquarters at Nashville, and has appointed Robert S. Sharp, of Chattanooga, collector of the new district.

JOHN GAFFORD,

Formerly of Christian, Dies in Paducah.

John Gafford, the blacksmith and wagon maker, formerly of Lafayette, died a few days ago in Paducah, where he had been living for several years. He was 68 years old, and died at the McCracken county sanitarium, where he had been confined with locomotor ataxia.

LARGE ADDITION

To Livery Stable of Gray & Gates.

The finishing touches are now being put to a large brick building just completed for Mr. James O. Cook on his property at the corner of Tenth and Clay streets. The building runs back from Clay street and connects with the property of J. P. Tate, in part by Gray & Gates, liverymen.

Gray & Gates have not had room for their large and increasing business for some time, but soon they will be able to render the most perfect satisfaction to their customers.

Buys Drug Store.

Mr. Ed R. Bogard has purchased the drug store on the corner of Fourth and Hathaway streets, which formerly belonged to Gillin and Heard, but was recently bought by C. F. Gillin. Mr. Bogard will keep a complete line of drugs and sundries and will run a first class drug store. Mr. Bogard is from LaFayette, Ky., where he was proprietor of a large drug store. He is a graduate from several of the best schools of pharmacy in the country and has had much experience in the drug business. He will move his family to Owensboro in the near future. Owensboro Messenger.

For Library Fund.

Next Saturday night a box supper will be given at Adams' school house. The teacher, Miss Mary Seagrunt, and her pupils cordially invite their friends to be present. As the proceeds go into the school library fund, a large attendance is expected.

President Of Book Company.

Rev. J. G. Bow has resigned as corresponding secretary of the state board of missions for Kentucky and has taken a position as the president of the Baptist Book company at Louisville. Rev. W. D. Powell will fill the vacancy.

Consulted Physicians to No Avail—Uses Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills and is Soon Perfectly well—The Disease Having Left Her Entirely.

CANNOT RECOMMEND CUTICURA TOO HIGHLY

"I take great pleasure in informing you that I was a sufferer of eczema in its very bad form for the past three years. I consulted and treated with a number of physicians in Chicago, but to no avail. I commenced using the Cuticura Remedy, consisting of Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills, three months ago, and today I am perfectly well, the disease having left me entirely. I cannot recommend the Cuticura Remedy too highly to any one suffering with the disease that I have had. Mrs. Florence E. Atwood, 18 Crilly Place, Chicago, Ill., October 2, 1905. Witness: L. S. Bergs."

FOR WOMAN'S EYE

Much of Interest to Every Woman Is Found in Cuticura Pamphlet.

Complete local and constitutional treatment for distressing, debilitating conditions from which women suffer may be found on page 5 of the Cuticura Pamphlet, written about the Cuticura Ointment. The pure, sweet, gentle, yet effective properties of the Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills, recommend them to women, especially mothers, for preserving, purifying and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair and hands, for the treatment of inflammatory and ulcerative conditions, as well as most efficacious medicinal agents in restoring to health, strength and beauty pale, weak, nervous, prematurely faded, run-down women.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

Advice and Suggestions Furnished by Miss Merri.

Dear Madame Merri: Please send name of book on the alities of society and oblige.

OLD SUBSCRIBER.

It is impossible to give names and addresses in the department. If the reader will send a self-addressed stamped envelope to Madame Merri, in care of the paper, the information will be forwarded.

Dear Madame Merri: I am going to give a party and want it to be a musical. What should be done to pass the evening besides music, and what should be served, etc.? ROSE

Generally the only entertainment necessary is the musical programme. You can have musical quotations on the cards bearing the programme and if you wish to give favors, get the pretty candy boxes which comes in all sorts of musical forms. You can serve elaborate or simple refreshments. I think a bowl of frappe with ice cream, or an ice all sufficient in the summer time.

For a Cotton Wedding.

I am thinking of giving a house party for some girl friends, celebrating our first wedding anniversary, and I am writing for suggestions from you. How shall I word the invitations or should they be informal notes? MRS. HERBERT T.

I should write little notes, wrap them in cotton, then place in envelopes, saying nothing that it was in honor of the anniversary. Then at dinner the wedding day have all the decorations of white, using cotton in every available way. I knew of a "first" anniversary dinner where wigs of fluffy cotton were provided; this made a lot of fun. Down south one can buy little cotton bales that would be fine for favors.

A Stork Party.

Some months ago a description of a stork party appeared in Madame Merri's department. I have lost the paper and ask you to kindly repeat and greatly oblige one who is a constant reader of your paper.

The above request has been the burden of many letters received lately. I think the best way to pacify the stork is to reprint the "party" in as condensed a form as possible.

In the affair described there were four honored guests and six intimate friends who conspired with the hostess to make the party a success.

On "the" four chairs at the dining table four bibles were tied. The favors were dainty celluloid rattles, white storks bore the place cards in their bills, but at "the" four plates each bird had a tiny doll baby done up in a small square of linen. The table centerpiece was a gilded gilt cradle, with a canopy of dotted Swiss, tied with pink ribbons. Tiny pink rosebuds were scattered over the table with maiden-hair ferns.

The napkins were folded like doll babies and fastened with safety pins. Candles, fairy lamps and a number of little night lamps furnished the illumination, while advertisements of all the baby foods adorned the walls. These had been cut from magazines and mounted on cardboard. There were also numerous "ads" of go-carts, cribs and high chairs.

The menu consisted of celery soup, chicken cutlets, mashed potato in ramkins, tomatoes and spaghetti, a fruit salad, ice cream in round ring molds, with wet bottles of paretoric, angel food and chocolate.

The afternoon was spent in working on various articles for the little strangers, and at five o'clock the hostess served what she said was cannolis and released "the" with baby "editor" crackers.

On departing the guests received small boxes which contained a minute cake of soap and a doll's hot water bottle.

My Dear Madame Merri: Is it proper to have a shower for a bride at a breakfast? If so, what time? Is this shower supposed to be a surprise to the bride?

What would be proper for the menu?

Should the parcels be sent to the hostess before the appointed time and when and how would be the most appropriate time to give them to the bride-elect? Would it be proper to invite married ladies? BEATRICE.

A breakfast is served at 12, half after or one o'clock, not later, and the same menu is served as one would have at a luncheon, with the exception of soup. The bride-elect may or may not know of the shower. I think it is interesting to have it a surprise. The parcels should be sent to the hostess before hand and they should be given after the lunch. It would be perfectly proper to invite married ladies. MADAME MERRI.

The "Chasuble" Coat.

Automobile enthusiasts have taken an interest in the new chasuble coat with open sides which falls absolutely straight at back and front like the ecclesiastical robe for which it is named. It is made of heavy linen or cotton, and so far has been finished with hands of heavy lace around the whole garment. On the fronts and sleeves it is usually finished with cotton passementerie and braiding. The first qualification of this coat for summer use is the readiness with which it clasps.

HURRAH FOR TEDDY.

Tells Newspaper Men He Will Go After Paper Trust.

Washington, Nov. 7.—President Roosevelt today indicated to members of the committee on Paper of American Newspaper Publishers' Association that he will recommend to Congress the abolition of the tariff on paper, wood pulp, and the wood that goes into the manufacture of paper; also that he will make a recommendation to the Department of Justice that it take immediate steps to ascertain whether the anti-trust laws are being disobeyed by the manufacturers of paper.

Farm For Sale.

A splendid farm, three miles east of Hopkinsville, on the Russellville pike, containing 282 acres, improved. J. O. COOK, Executor.

Society in Good Shape.

The Society of Equity is in good shape. As to President J. A. Everitt using the National Headquarters for any unfair means, I don't believe there is a word of truth in it.

The truth is, farmers are very suspicious of each other and the bulk of farmers knowing that they did not respond to their duty to pay their dues and fees and so many not contributing anything and taking all advantages of fellow farmers, lumping and getting all benefits.

He got suspicious of where his labor was getting his money, and I to carry on the work will tell you where it comes from. From the fee the member paid to join, the third comes, a book that was sold to raise funds, and Mr. Everett and his field of organizers contributed largely, also the county papers did good work at their own expense.

We see no defeat ahead. If they don't allow us to set our own price on farm produce we will knock out the protection of Manufactured goods and allow the law of supply and demand to regulate the prices. F. B. McCOWN.

If You Knew

CROFTON FIRM

Awarded Gold Medal On Their Product.

Ten gold medals were awarded to Kentucky manufacturers by the secretary of the jury awards at the Jamestown Exposition. Pratt & Worthington, of Crofton, was one of the successful exhibitors. The St. Bernard Coal Company, of Earlington, was also awarded a prize.

Farmers, mechanics, railroads, laborers rely on Dr. Thomas' Electric oil. Takes the sting out of cuts, burns or bruises at once. Pain cannot stay where it is used.

Whites in Natal.

Statistics prove that to every white in Natal there are two Indians and from ten to 11 Kaffirs. The whites are the ruling class, but they hold that position by prestige, and should the natives once realize their huge superiority they might easily ruin the colony.

Don't think that piles can't be cured. Thousands of obstinate cases have been cured by Doan's Ointment. 50 cents at any drug store.

Meet in Deadly Combat.

In the kingdom of Baroda, India, a favorite sport is a fist fight in which the fighters wear a steel coat which has formidable claws. The combatants, who have been crazed with a drink of liquid opium mixed with an infusion of hemp, enter the arena stinging one of them is certain to be killed.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Giles Dudley arrives in San Francisco to join his friend and distant relative Henry Wilton, whom he was to assist in an important and mysterious task, and who accompanied Dudley on the ferry boat trip into the city. The remarkable resemblance of the two men is noted and commented on by passengers on the ferry. They see a man with small eyes, which sends a thrill through Dudley. Wilton postpones an explanation of the strange errand Dudley is to perform, but occurrences cause him to know it is one of no ordinary nature. Wilton leaves Giles in their room with instruction to wait his return and about any one who tries to enter.

CHAPTER II.—Giles hears there, heard shouts and curses and the noise of a quarrel. Henry rushes in and at his request the roommates quickly exchange clothes, and he hurries out again. Hardy has in gone that Giles is startled by cry of "Help," and he runs out to find some one being assaulted by a half dozen men. He summons a policeman but they are unable to find any trace of a crime.

CHAPTER III.—Giles returns to his room and hunts for some evidence that might explain his strange mission. He might see who he endeavors to decipher. He goes to sleep and is awakened by the presence of some one in his room. They grapple and the prisoner demands to know "where is the key?" Four figures come to the rescue and find a half dozen men. Dudley is mistaken for Henry Wilton, and receives a note from Henry to be paid him.

CHAPTER IV.—Dudley is summoned to the morgue and there finds the dead body of his friend. He is told that he had been killed during the fight outside the building of the night before. He gives order to partially carry out the body and to return to the room. He is told that his friend had imposed on him and that he was to perform in San Francisco. Dudley describes a man with the face of a wolf as the murderer of his friend.

CHAPTER V.—In order to discover the secret mission his friend had entrusted to him, Dudley continues his disguise and permits himself to be known as Henry Wilton. He is puzzled over the note he had received asking him to call before the bank for money. He is called before the bank and is told that he is to call on the man who looks like a wolf. Dudley mistakes for Wilton, a employee of Knapp to assist in a stock brokerage deal.

As I reflected thus, I came upon a crowd massed about the steps of a great granite building in Pine Street; a whirlpool of men, it seemed, with cross-currents and eddies, and from this whole rose the murmur of excited voices.

It was the Stock Exchange, the gambler's paradise, in which millions were staked, won and lost, and ruin and affluence walked side by side.

As I watched the swaying, shouting mass with wonder and amusement, a thrill shot through me.

Upon the steps of the building, amid the crowd of brokers and speculators, I saw a tall, broad-shouldered man of fifty or fifty-five, his face keen, shrewd and hard, brown at the temples and tapering to a strong jaw, a yellow-gray mustache and imperial half-hiding and half-revealing the firm lines of the mouth, with the mark of the wolf strong upon the whole. It was a face never to be forgotten as long as I should hold memory at all. It was the face I had seen twelve hours before in the lantern flash in the dreadful alley, with the cry of murder ringing in my ears.

Then it was lighted by the fierce fires of rage and hatred, and marked with the chagrin of baffled plans. Now it was cool, good-humored, alert for the battle of the Exchange that had already begun. But I knew it for the same, and was near crying aloud that here was a murderer.

I clutched my nearest neighbor by the arm, and demanded to know who it was.

"Doddridge Knapp," replied the man civilly. "He's running the Cholar deal now, and it's only guess which side he's on, I'd make a fortune in the next few days. He's the King of Pine Street."

While I was looking at the King of the Street and listening to my neighbor's tales of his operations, Doddridge Knapp's eyes met mine.

To my amazement there was a look of recognition in them. Yet he made no sign, and in a moment was gone.

This, then, was the enemy I was to meet! This was the explanation of Detective Coogan's hint that I should be safer in jail than free on the streets to face this man's hatred or revenge.

I must have stood in a daze on the busy street, for I was roused by some one shaking my arm with vigor.

"Come! are you asleep?" said the man, speaking in my ear. "Can't you hear?"

"Yes, yes," said I, rousing my attention.

"The chief wants you." His voice was low, almost a whisper.

"The chief? Who? Where?" I asked.

"At the City Hall!" I jumped to the conclusion that it was, of course, the chief of police, on the scent of the murder.

"No. Of course not. In the second office, you know."

This was scarcely enlightening. Doubtless, however, it was a summons from my unknown employer.

"I'll follow you," I said promptly.

"I don't think I'd better go," said the messenger dubiously. "He didn't say anything about it, and you know he's rather—"

"Well, I order it," I cut in decisively. "I may need you."

I certainly needed him at that moment if I was to find my way.

"Go ahead a few steps," I said.

"I'll go with you," said the messenger, and he went without another word.

word, I sauntered after him with as careless an air as I could assume.

My heart was beating fast. I felt that I was close to the mystery and that the next half hour would determine whether I was to take up Henry Wilton's work or to find my way in safety back to my own name and person.

My unconscious guide led the way along Montgomery Street into an office building, and a flight of stairs, and into a back hallway.

"Stay a moment," I said, as he had his hand on the door knob. "On second thoughts you can wait down stairs."

He turned back, and as his footstep echoed down the stair, I opened the door and entered the office.

I crossed the threshold and I stopped short. Before me sat Doddridge Knapp, the King of the Street, the man for whom about all others in the world I felt a loathing and fear.

Doddridge Knapp finished signing his name to a paper on an oak desk before he looked up.

"Come in and sit down," he said. The voice was alert and business like—the voice of a man accustomed to command. But I could find no trace of feeling in it, nothing that could tell me of the hatred or desperate purpose that would inspire such a tragedy as I had witnessed, or warn me of danger to come.

"But the door and sit down," he said impatiently. "Just spring that lock, will you? We might be interrupted."

I was not at all certain that I should wish very earnestly that he might be interrupted in what Bret Harte would call the "subsequent proceedings." But I followed his directions.

Doddridge Knapp was not less impressive at close view than at long range. The strong face grew stronger when seen from the near distance.

"My dear Wilton," he said, "I've come to a place where I've got to trust somebody, so I've come back to you." The voice was oily and persuasive, but the keen gray eyes shot out a glance from under the bushy eyebrows that thrilled me as a warning.

"It's very kind of you," I said, swallowing my astonishment with an effort.

"Well," said Knapp, "the way you handled that Ophir matter was perfectly satisfactory; but I'll tell you that it's on Mrs. Knapp's say-so, as much as on your own doing, that I selected you for this job."

"I'm much obliged to Mrs. Knapp," I said politely. I was in deep waters. It was plainly unsafe to do anything but drift.

"Oh, you can settle that with her at your next call," he said good humoredly.

The faded nerves of surprise refused to respond further. If I had received a telegram informing me that the dispute over the presidency had been settled by shoving both Hayes and Tilden and giving the unanimous vote of the electors to me, I should have accepted it as a matter of course. I took my place unquestioningly as a valued acquaintance of Doddridge Knapp's and a particular friend of Mrs. Knapp's.

Yet it struck me as strange that the keen-eyed King of the Street had failed to discover that he was not talking to Henry Wilton, but to some one who was not Henry Wilton.

There were enough differences in features and voice to distinguish us among intimate friends, though there were not enough to be seen by casual acquaintances. I had the key in the next sentence he spoke.

"I have decided that it is better this time to do our business face to face. Don't want to trust messengers on this affair, and even cipher notes are dangerous, confoundedly dangerous."

Then we had not been close acquaintances.

"Oh, by the way, you have that other cipher yet, haven't you?" he asked.

"No, burnt it," I said unblushingly.

"That's right," he said. "It was best not to take risks. Of course you understand that it won't do for us to be seen together."

"Certainly not," I said.

"I have arranged for another one. Here's the address. Yours is Room 15. I have the key to it, and it is vacant tonight with a 'To Let' sign on it. They open into each other. You understand?"

"Perfectly," I said.

"You will be here by nine o'clock for your orders. If you get none by twelve, there will be none for the day."

"I can't be there, I'll let you know," I was off my guard for a moment, thinking of the possible demands of Henry's unknown employer.

"You will do nothing of the kind," said Doddridge Knapp shortly. His voice, so smooth and businesslike a moment before, changed suddenly to a growl. His heavy eyebrows came down, and from under them flashed a dangerous light. "You will be there when I tell you, young man, or you'll have to reckon with another sort of customer than the one you've been dealing with. This matter requires prompt and strict obedience to orders. One slip may ruin the whole plan."

"You can depend on me," I said with assumed confidence. "Am I to have any discretion?"

"None whatever."

I had then far been able to get no hint of his purpose. If I had not known what I knew, I should have supposed that his mind was concentrated on the apparent object before him—to secure the real and fidelity of an employee in some important business operation.

"And what am I to do?" I asked.

"Be a capitalist," he said with an ironical smile. "Buy and sell what I tell you to buy and sell. Keep under cover, but not too much under cover. You can pick your own brokers. Better begin with Bookstein and Eppner, though. Your checks will be honored at the Nevada Bank. Oh, here's a cipher in case I want to write you. I suppose you'll want some ready money."

Doddridge Knapp was certainly a liberal provider, for he shoved a handful of twenty-dollar gold pieces across the desk in a way that made my eyes open.

"By the way," he continued, "I don't think I have your signature, have I?"

"No, sir," I replied with prompt confidence.

"Well, just write it on this slip then. I'll turn it into the bank for your identification. You can take the checkbook with you."

"Anything more?"

"That's all," he replied with a nod of dismissal. "Maybe it's to-morrow—maybe it's next month."

And I walked out into Montgomery Street, bewildered among the conflicting mysteries in which I had been tangled.

CHAPTER VI.

A Night at Borton's.

Room 15 was a plain, comfortable office in a plain, comfortable building on Clay Street, not far from the heart of the business district. It was on the second floor, and its one window opened to the rear, and faced a desolate assortment of back yards, rear walls, and rickety stairways.

The room had a worn carpet, and there was a desk, a few chairs and a shelf of law books. The place looked as though it had belonged to a lawyer in reduced circumstances, and I could not wonder how it had come into the possession of Doddridge Knapp, and what had become of the former occupant.

I tried to thrust aside a spirit of melancholy, and looked narrowly to the opportunities offered by the room for attack and defense. The walls were solidly built. The window-cases showed an unusual depth for a building of that height. The wall had been put in to withstand an earthquake shock. The door opening into the hall, the door into Room 16, and the window furnished the three avenues of possible attack or retreat.

The depression of spirits that progressed with my survey of the room deepened into gloom as I flung myself into the arm-chair before the desk, and tried to plan some way out of the tangle in which I was involved. How was I, single-handed, to contend against the power of the richest man in the city, and bring home to him the murder of Henry Wilton?

I could look for no assistance from the police. The words of Detective Coogan were enough to show that only the most convincing proof of guilt, backed by fear of public sentiment, could bring the department to raise a finger against him.

And how could I hope to rouse that public sentiment? What would my word count against that of the King of the Street?

Who was the motive for the crime? Until that was made clear I could not hope to piece together the scraps of evidence into a solid structure of proof. And what motive could there be? And what motive?

the Doddridge Knapp who sought the life of Henry Wilton, with the Doddridge Knapp of this morning, who was ready to engage him in his confidential business? And had I the right to accept any part in his business?

Fatigue and loss of sleep deepened the dejection of mind that oppressed me with these insistent questions, and as I vainly struggled against it, carried me at last into the oblivion of dreamless slumber.

The next I knew I was awaking to the sound of breaking glass. It was dark but for a feeble light that came from the window. Every bone in my body ached from the cramped position in which I had slept, and it seemed an age before I could rouse myself to act. It was, however, but a second before I was on my feet, revolver in hand, with the desk between me and a possible assailant.

Silence, threatening, oppressive, surrounded me as I stood listening, watching, for the next move.

"I thought the transom was open," said a low voice, which still seemed to be struggling with suppressed laughter.

"I guess it woke him up," said another and harsher voice. "I heard a noise in there."

"You're certain he's there?" asked the first voice with another chuckle.

"Sure, Dicky. I saw him go in, and Porter and I have taken turns to watch ever since."

"Well, it's time he came out," said Dicky. "He can't be asleep after that racket. Say," he called, Harry! What's the matter with you? If you're dead let us know."

"They appeared friendly, but I hesitated in framing an answer."

"We'll have to break down the door, I guess," said Dicky. "Something must have happened." And a resounding kick shook the panel.

"Hold on!" I cried. "What's wanted?"

"Oh," said Dicky sarcastically. "You've come to life again, have you?"

"Well, I'm not dead yet."

"Then strike a light and let us in. And take a look at that reminder you'll find wrapped around the rock I heaved through the transom. I thought it was open." And Dicky went off into another series of chuckles in appreciation of his mistake.

AWAKENING

To The Fact That Warde is Pre-Eminent.

There seems to be every evidence necessary to predict an unusually large attendance at the tabernacle next Friday night to greet Frederick Warde, the greatest living exponent of the great Shakespeare. Mr. Warde left the stage at the height of his fame and gave himself up to the more careful study of the poet, so that on the platform, without playing upon the emotions of his hearers, he could appeal to their intelligence and enable them to see the beauty of Shakespeare's poetry, the depth of his philosophy, the universality of his knowledge and his all pervading Christianity. The latter of which had never occurred to the casual reader.

Manager McPherson has arranged for all children to have a chance of hearing Mr. Warde as will be seen in the advertisement in today's issue. The Elks and Knights of Pythias will have seats reserved.

Los Angeles Evening Express—Mr. Warde is absolute master of his subject. He is a speaker majestic in the extreme, scholarly in the presentation of the subject and delightful in style. For two hours he held his audience spell-bound, absolutely fascinated with his power of delineation, his subtle and delightful criticism, his magnetic oratory and graceful delivery.

WHAT PLUCK HAS DONE.

Ideal Attained After Many Years Battling Against Fickle Fortune.

Starting out when not much over eighteen to rub up against the world and with the determination to succeed in building up a business peculiarly his own, Thomas L. Metcalfe, the laundryman, soon convinced the people that he was made of the stuff that succeeds. His venture in the laundry business met with varying success at first, but the end of the month almost invariably found him with a little surplus over expenses. Everything in the way of clear profit has been put into improved machinery from time to time until now, at the expiration of 20 years of strenuous life, he has one of the best plants in the South. His patrons are legion. He gives the two express companies more business than all the other houses of the city combined, for there is hardly a city or town within a radius of 200 miles to which his work does not go.

But the object of this article is to more particularly call attention to another business taken up for development only eight years ago by Mr. Metcalfe.

Seeing the great demand for flowers, both cut and potted, he could not see why the large shipments of flowers from St. Louis, Chicago, Nashville and Evansville could not be grown here. Seeing his opportunity, he began making arrangements for growing the many flowers required for social functions, banquets, tributes on funeral occasions, etc. Often he had to call on some of the ladies of the city who take pleasure in raising flowers to help him fill his orders. Year by year the little glass-roofed house at Sixth and Railroad streets grew larger and larger and one variety after another of the kingdom of Flora found its way and began to take root and bloom in the greenhouse of the tireless young man.

And so it has been from the beginning—more flowers demanded more room, and more room and more flowers called for more attention from the owner.

Mr. Metcalfe is a wonderfully industrious man. The days are consumed by duties so multitudinous, if called upon when he sits down to the evening meal he could not name half the things that received his attention. But work is not done with him when the day is gone. At his desk in the office of the laundry he attends to his correspondence that no one else can handle, and night after night of each week the click-click of the typewriter is heard close to the midnight hour. All of the employees are dead to the world in sleep, but the head of the two establishments cannot find rest until what must be done has been accomplished.

It is a fact that the people of our city and county know less of the proportions of Mr. Metcalfe's greenhouse than the people of other cities, for he is known far and wide as the producer of the choicest of flowers and orders come by mail from Nashville, Paducah, Henderson, Owensboro and often from the larger cities, which in early days supplied him on special orders. But Mr. Metcalfe believes in growing and expanding, and now has a plant at Madisonville about as large as the one here, as well as another at Clarksville. At this time he is quite busy here in piling his greenhouses, which cover more than half a square. Mr. Frank Brown, a native of Canada, and a man of long experience in floriculture, is at the head of the plant here. Mr. Decker, late with Martin, at Clarksville, is assisting Mr. Metcalfe in many details. Mr. Metcalfe is repaying to be safe from anything like a drop of the temperature or below zero this winter and is spending a good deal of money in that direction. His watchman cannot afford to sleep on duty or neglect keeping the temperature at the right degree for a register that has been put in shows every variation in 24 hours. Then there is another that will ring a-bell, and keep it up, if the temperature goes down to a certain number.

Mr. Metcalfe is up to date in flowers as well as details in successfully growing them. We were shown through the other day and were perfectly amazed at what we saw. We were in a wilderness of flowers—growing, budding, blooming flowers. Chrysanthemums, to the number of 5,000 or 6,000, nearly as many roses, of every name, banks of carnations everywhere you looked in full bloom and in the bud, ferns everywhere, including the Philadelphia lace ferns also brought from Tarrytown, N. Y., rubber plants, the celebrated Lewis Childs palms, pandarauts, new begonias, azaleas, geraniums, hundreds of calla and sacred lilies, peonies and sprenge-erie asparagus, and almost every flower that can be named.

After eight years of hard work and planning Mr. Metcalfe has about attained the ideal that he started out after. Everything is about as can be and he invites all, particularly the ladies, to call and see the beauties that the fair sex so much love. It is an old saying that you can judge of the refinement of a woman by her love for flowers. The lover of flowers can have no excuse for not cultivating them, for Mr. Metcalfe is so reasonable in his prices that anyone can buy. His supply of roses and chrysanthemums is almost unlimited. Among his family of roses can be found Brides, Bridemaids, Kaisers, Golden Gates, Ivories, American Beauties, La Frances, and others too numerous to mention. He has a number of the (Saidi) Mayes chrysanthemum, which when in full bloom, is white but later assumes a rich cream in color.

He has cases that cost him a big sum for keeping cut flowers for ten days in order to supply orders as soon as they come to hand.

Every function can be supplied at the shortest notice and decorations are a specialty.

Funeral orders, no matter what designs may be filed and sent on first train after orders are received.
